TV's Lisa shares tips on healthy eating

TV CHEF Lisa Faulkner gave a cookery demonstration to pupils at a primary school last week as she shared healthy eating tips.

The actress and 2010 Celebrity Masterchef winner visited Stamford Hill school, in Vartry Road, Tottenham, on Thursday to tell youngsters about how to make healthier food and drink choices by using a new Be Food Smart App.

The mobile phone app, launched as part of Public Health England's Change4Life Campaign, helps pupils and parents see how much sugar, saturated fat and salt is in everyday food and drink by scanning barcodes.

Lisa also showed the students some easy-to-prepare healthy dishes.

"Even though I'm passionate about cooking, as a mum I know it can be difficult to encourage your children to eat healthily," she said.

"I wanted to show that eating food that is good for you doesn't mean it's boring

Tasteful stuff: TV chef Lisa Faulkner, back row, right, with headteacher Kathleen O'Sullivan and a group of youngsters at Stamford Hill Primary School

"Hopefully, the healthy tips and easy-to-make recipes that the children learned in the lesson are something they can take home and try," she added.

Headteacher Kathleen O'Sullivan said the visit by the celebrity chef, combined with the school's on-going efforts, would "help pupils adopt healthy habits that they can take with them into the future."

Police search for knife thugs

TWO men who wounded four club-goers in a violent Saturday night knife rampage along a Muswell Hill street are being hunted by police.

And detectives have released CCTV images of the men they want to speak with following the incident.

The unprovoked attacks happened in the early hours on Saturday, January 28, in The Broadway, an area known for its bars and clubs.

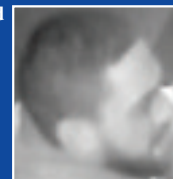

One of the victims, a man in his early 20s, had been standing outside the Socialite Bar at 3.40am when he was approached by the two thugs.

After a brief exchange of words, one of the suspects pulled a knife and inflicted slash injuries which required hospital treatment.

As the attackers fled, they were involved in a second altercation with three men outside the Metropolitan Bar, a short distance down the road.

A 25-year-old man suffered an ear injury, which needed surgery, as well as slash injuries, a 23-year-old man needed hospital treatment for slash injuries to his head and a 34-year-old man made his own way to hospital by taxi having received a stab wound to the neck.

The two suspects are described as white and in their late 20s, or early 30s. If you recognise the people in the CCTV stills, call Haringey CID on 020 3276 3079, or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111, or tweet @MetCC.

POWER TO THE PEOPLE

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A PIONEERING scheme to provide cheaper greener energy to heat and provide hot water to thousands of new homes and businesses has been given the go-ahead by Haringey Council.

The local authority has approved the construction of a district energy network – a system of underground pipes supplying water heated by the incineration of non-recyclable waste. Several such localised power schemes already exist in parts of London as well as in major UK cities including Sheffield and Bristol.

Haringey plans to establish a network in north Tottenham, building a power plant and installing underground pipes to supply 5,000 new homes as part of the High Road West and Northumberland Park regeneration schemes.

And there is the possibility of extending it to supply the massive nearby development turbine which will generate electricity which can be sold to the National Grid.

The District Energy Network will be wholly owned and managed by the local authority and is more environmentally friendly than others because fossil fuels which cause greenhouse gases are not used as a power source.

It will help the council towards its target of reducing Haringey's carbon footprint by 40 per cent by 2020, with the ultimate goal of it being a zero-carbon borough by 2050.

"We're determined that our ambitious regeneration plans go hand-in-hand with our commitment to cut carbon across the borough," said Joe Goldberg, the council's cabinet member for economic development, social inclusion and sustainability.

"Taking the lead on a new municipal energy company would mean bringing greener, cheaper energy from a secure local supply to thousands of new homes and businesses," added Mr Goldberg.

"In the longer term, our ambition is to develop the District Energy Network so that it not only meets the energy needs of the area, but is also run by community customers."

Full steam ahead for new power plant

The future: An artist's impression of the new energy recovery facility at Edmonton EcoPark

Waste conversion will carry on as existing site is replaced

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A HUGE new plant that turns waste into energy has been approved for the borough.

Greg Clarke, the Secretary of State for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, has given the green light for the North London Waste Authority (NLWA) to build a new energy recovery facility at Edmonton EcoPark, in Advent Way.

Now that DCO (development consent order) has been approved, the NLWA, which is made up of 14 councillors from seven London boroughs, including Enfield, Barnet and Haringey, will consider the decision, and any conditions included, at a meeting in April.

Clyde Loakes, the chairman of the NLWA, said: "I am delighted that the secretary of state has granted the DCO for a new energy recovery facility.

"This puts the authority in the best possible position to consider the scheme in the round and secures the best way of managing north London's non-recyclable waste long term."

The new energy recovery facility, to be built on a 38-acre site, will replace the existing one before it reaches the end of its lifespan in 2025 so it can continue to turn waste into energy – heat and power.

Following the development of the plans, work could start as early as 2019. The existing plant would be decommissioned and demolished once the new facility is up and running by 2028.

As well as the new plant there will be a recycling centre open to the public from 2021 and a visitors' centre where people can find out more about waste, recycling heat and power.

Woman saved in house fire

FIREFIGHTERS rescued a woman from a blaze at a house in Ponders End during the early hours of Friday morning.

Crews wearing breathing gear helped the woman to safety from the smoke-filled property in The Ride after a fire broke out shortly after 2.30am.

The woman was treated by ambulance crews at the scene.

Officers in two fire engines from Enfield brought the blaze under control by 3.02am.

The cause of the blaze, which damaged a doorway on the ground floor, is being investigated.

Sex change Lee tells life story

A FORMER Edmonton resident, who underwent a sex change, is returning to the borough this week-end to launch a book about his life story.

Lee D Carter was born Lisa Carter in Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, 48 years ago and lived in Chester Road.

He will be at the Waterstones bookshop, in Church Street, Enfield Town, on Saturday to launch his memoir, Living With Lisa.

Lee, who went to Salisbury School, in Turin Road, Edmonton, now lives in Clacton-on-Sea, in Essex.

A dash of colour: Oasis Academy Hadley year 6 pupil Hazel Kaya with her painting

Youngsters' artwork goes down a storm

PROUD primary school pupils braved high winds to unveil their artwork presented on the hoarding of a huge regeneration site as Storm Doris took hold last week.

While work gets under way on the Ponders End regeneration project, residents can admire vibrant paintings of the new housing and what was the former Alma Estate on the boards around the perimeter of the site.

Pupils from three primary schools – St Matthew's and Oasis Academy Hadley – both in South Street – and Alma, in Alma Road, took part in the project last year, aimed at displaying the new and old sites to represent the development of the area.

Samira, nine, from Alma Primary, said: "We worked as a team and painted the new flats so people can see what they will look like."

"The paintings of the old flats will also remind people how they looked and show them what a great place Enfield is."

Ten-year-old Ridwan, from Alma Primary, added: "It's really exciting because lots of people can see our artwork and it makes me feel famous."

The regeneration is a joint partnership between Enfield Council and Countryside housing developers.

Helen Thomas, headteacher at Alma Primary, praised the project and the children's hard work.

"We have received positive comments from parents and pupils about the project and how lovely it looks," she said.

"We are very much looking forward to working collaboratively with Countryside on other projects throughout the regeneration of the local area.

Ahmet Oykenker, the council's cabinet member for housing and housing regeneration, who was among guests at the unveiling ceremony, said: "The young people have all contributed such wonderful artwork which really enhances the site."

"This artwork will be a great source of inspiration for everyone, reminding locals of Ponders End's history and its exciting prospects for the future."

Glum rockers miss out

GLAM rock fans were left feeling glum after a T. Rex tribute band's no-show at Millfield Theatre for the second time in six months.

Top tribute band T. Rextasy's appearance on Saturday night – cancelled due to sickness – had already been rescheduled from October last year after that show had been postponed.

The band, regarded as the top T. Rex tribute act in the country, have also been forced to cancel two other shows – in Dorking and King's Lynn – on their UK Marc Bolan 40th commemorative anniversary tour after Bolan lookalike and soundalike Danielz – real name John Williams – suffered laryngitis.

But they have vowed to make it up to fans by rescheduling the Millfield gig for a third time by playing the venue in Silver Street, Edmonton, on Friday, June 16.

Original tickets will be valid and anyone who is unable to go in June can apply for a refund from the Millfield box office.

Danielz, 57, said:

"Both the band and I were really disappointed at not being able to perform. We plan to make it up to everyone who had been expecting to enjoy the brilliant music of Marc Bolan and T. Rex by staging a rescheduled show in the summer."

School's crossing plan comes together nicely

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A ZEBRA crossing has been installed outside a campus site that is home to four schools and hundreds of pupils.

Students from Broomfield School celebrated the new safer crossing this week by recreating The Beatles' iconic Abbey Road album cover.

Peter Travis, Broomfield's headteacher, worked with Enfield Council to get the zebra crossing installed to make it easier for students, aged from three to 19, and residents to cross the notoriously busy Wilmer Way.

Mr Travis said: "The school has been working with the council for some time to help improve road safety in the area."

"Wilmer Way is a fast-moving road as many cars leave the A406 at speed and we really needed a safe and visible crossing that not only pupils and parents can use, but indeed the whole community."

"We are really delighted that it is now in place and we hope everyone will 'Come Together' and use this crossing."

The students were joined on Monday by Ayfer Orhan, the council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, and Daniel Anderson, cabinet member for the environment.

Ms Orhan said: "Back in 1969, when The Beatles were photographed in Abbey Road, there were a lot fewer cars around than there are now, so road safety is now higher than ever on the agenda.

"The safety of students is a top priority. Not only will this zebra crossing allow staff, pupils and other residents to cross this road safely, but it will help to slow traffic on this busy residential road."

The council has implemented a number of road safety schemes around schools to ensure that pupils can arrive and leave safely each day.

They include 20mph speed limits and parking restrictions as well as other traffic-calming measures.

Dropping in: Visitors to the open day look at the exhibition and discuss Islam

A warm welcome

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

THE welcome mat was put down by worshippers at an Enfield mosque at the weekend in a bid to dispel suspicion about Muslims and help residents gain a better understanding of their faith.

The public – both non-believers as well as members of other religions – were invited inside Enfield Mosque, in Ponders End High Street, on Saturday and Sunday to look around, chat with some of worshippers and learn about Islam in a special exhibition.

The aim was to build bridges with the community and challenge ill-founded perceptions that some may have of Muslims based on media stories.

“There is this misconception about Muslims due to media coverage of extremists who are not representative of most Muslims,” said Iman Muhammad Uddin, one of the mosque’s holy leaders.

“Islam is a peace-loving religion and so are the vast majority of UK and Enfield Muslims, and all we are saying is, ‘Don’t believe all you read, come and see for yourself’.

“Some mistakenly think Muslims don’t believe in Jesus, but he is a prophet in our religion and so you can’t be a Muslim unless you do believe in him.

“Inviting the wider community into our mosque to give us all the opportunity to understand each other better and to build bridges will hopefully make our community more resilient against division and hate, whoever the victims of that may be,” he added.

The mosque has stood on its present site since 1981 and more than 1,500 Muslims worship there each week.

Visitors were able to experience the five-times a day prayer sessions held at the mosque as well as the exhibition full of fascinating artefacts charting the history of Islam.

The invitation to visit the mosque and the exhibition was also extended to the borough’s schools on Monday afternoon and yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon.

Dignitaries, councillors, MPs, faith leaders and businessmen as well as police officers were also invited on Monday week to collaborate and work together for charity and the community.

Can they dig it?: Prince of Wales pupils Ela Hussein, Amy Gilbert, Jessica West, Adrian Masiewicz and Jamaal Cole-Kalokoh

Mammoth task meets with students' approval

PRIMARY school pupils were treated to a rare glimpse of an archaeological dig where ancient artefacts were recovered on an Enfield site which had had a planning application suspended.

The dig was part of an archaeological survey carried out to determine whether artefacts from the Mesolithic period – about 280,000 years ago – were buried beneath the Prince of Wales Open Space, next to River Lee Navigation canal, in Enfield Lock.

Year 5 youngsters from Prince of Wales Primary School, in Salisbury Road, Enfield Lock, watched the dig taking place as various artefacts were uncovered during excavation, including tools thousands of years old.

The planning application to turn the site into a wetland to create a wildlife sanctuary and an area for the community had been suspended by Enfield Council.

A two-day survey was conducted on the site by members of the Enfield Archaeological Society, together with the Museum of London Archaeology earlier this month.

Recent finds near the site have included a mammoth's tusk and flint tools.

Work on the Prince of Wales wetlands project is expected to start soon.

"This dig has been a wonderful opportunity for the schoolchildren to learn about ancient Enfield," said Ayfer Orhan, the council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection.

"Looking to the future, the creation of a new wetland area will not only make the space a haven for local residents, it will also create a wonderful facility for schoolchildren to help enhance their education, learn about climate change, flood prevention and wildlife.

"We see this as a fascinating manner in which to enhance their learning," she added

Jan Bless, the headteacher at Prince of Wales Primary School, said that the development would be a good opportunity for students because they would have a "mini woodland just on their doorstep".

To volunteer and/or help with the project, email the Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust at rita.serra@wwt.org.uk, or visit their Facebook page.

Race hate thug behind bars following anti-terror probe

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A RIGHT-WING extremist has been jailed for five years following a probe by anti-terrorist police officers.

Hatemonger Sean Creighton came to the attention of the Metropolitan Police's Counter Terrorism Command after he had posted a picture of himself on social media holding an assault rifle standing in front of a Nazi flag.

The 45-year-old was prolific in posting racist and homophobic material with the intention of stirring up hatred.

When police searched his address, which they are not disclosing for operational reasons, they discovered that he possessed a manual "useful to a person committing or preparing an act of terrorism."

They also discovered that he was using other methods to spread his vile message of hate, including putting offensive stickers on street furniture. Creighton, pictured, right, pleaded guilty to seven public order offences and one terrorism charge when he appeared at Kingston Crown Court last Thursday and was given a five-year prison sentence.

Commander Dean Haydon, of the Counter Terrorism Command, said: "We are as committed to apprehending and prosecuting far-right extremists who commit terrorist offences and promote hatred as we are those who support and promote ISIS."

Town invitation to women fans

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

THE reputation football grounds have as bastions of blokeism is set to change when Enfield Town FC play on Saturday.

Women and girls are being given free admission by the Ryman League Premier Division club to their home ground at Queen Elizabeth Stadium, in Donkey Lane, Enfield, as part of an initiative to get more females going to footie.

The game with Havant and Waterlooville has been selected by the club as a suitable match to encourage women and girls to sample the excitement and atmosphere of live soccer in a supportive environment.

It's part of Women at the Game, the brainchild of Altrincham FC supporter, Jacqui Foster.

She explained: "I simply want to enable more women to feel happy going to watch sport, particularly men's football.

"I think that meeting other women before the game, entering the ground together and wherever possible spending the match with their new-found friends and even travelling home together will make more women of all backgrounds, ethnicity and religion more likely to give "going to the footie" a go.

"This is really about making friends with other women who support the same club," she added.

Enfield Town FC, the first supporter-owned club in the country, is strongly backing the initiative, which it says fits in with its vision of being an inclusive club for all.

The match has also been chosen to mark International Women's Day next Wednesday.

Town's vice-chairman Paul Millington said:

Come on down: Enfield Town FC vice-chairman Paul Millington is extending an invitation to women football fans

"We will be creating an environment on Saturday in which women can enjoy their experience, perhaps for the first time, of attending a live football match.

"The club will be arranging for female stewards to help familiarise newcomers with the facilities and a reserved seating area will be available."

The game kicks off at 3pm.

Development plans get the green light

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A MULTI-MILLION-POUND development that promises to revamp the centre of Cockfosters has been given the go-ahead.

Enfield Council's planning committee voted in favour of the massive scheme, which includes a 64-bedroom hotel, a medical centre, shops, restaurants and 164 new homes and has been christened "Cockfosters Green".

New trees, al fresco dining, a wooden play area and a series of courtyards will help create a "village green" feel and breathe new life into the area in Cockfosters Road.

Now that the plans have been given the green light, bulldozers can move on to the site to pull down two of the 1960s buildings – Churchwood House and Holbrook House.

The tallest of the three buildings, Black Horse Tower, will be partly demolished and an additional floor will be constructed to provide 88 residential units within a ten-storey block.

The rest will be divided between another two blocks, together with a central courtyard rooftop garden with a play area, a roof-level podium garden and landscaping of the green below.

Developers anticipate the work will be complete by 2020.

The planning committee voted eight to two in favour of the development on Tuesday last week.

Architectural director Peter Newton said: "We have really concentrated our designs on creating an open, continuous and active frontage to increase fluidity of movement between the Tube station and the town centre, creating a safer and more attractive public realm environment."

"We have focused on stitching the neighbourhood together by creating a gateway building that clearly defines the reinvigorated Cockfosters Green and links the two stretches of the shopping parade to the north and south of the site. The new buildings are designed to mediate between the large 1960s' retained building and the surroundings in scale, massing, materials and architectural language with the aim of enhancing the existing building as well as the adjoining built context."

But Cockfosters ward councillor Jason Charalambous, who voted against the plans, said he did not share the architect's optimism.

"I was very much in favour of the redevelopment of the site and welcome additional new housing (including affordable) to the area, but the emergence of another big development will exacerbate parking and traffic problems which are already at breaking point."

"The scale of the proposed development is excessive and will transform a pleasant, village-like environment into an overbearing urban one."

"Regrettably, my concerns, echoed by local residents, were ignored in the interest of expediency – as is all too often the case with Enfield's planning committee."

"We will therefore likely be left with another inappropriate development which will undermine the area's character, put considerable strain on local services and make commuting more miserable still."

Spring clean is in the air at Forty Hall

A MASS litter-pick is taking place at Forty Hall on Sunday to coincide with the country's biggest-ever community clear-up, the Great British Spring Clean.

Enfield Council is calling for volunteers to join in between 10am and midday – and this will be followed by a workshop in the historic hall, in Forty Hill, where participants will be able to create "beautiful garden scenes from waste", using items found during the clean-up, as well as natural materials, paint and junk.

Daniel Anderson, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "Just like The Wombles, we are asking Enfield residents to help us give Forty Hall Park a makeover and then, using the materials gathered during the day, create works of art."

"We have an extensive programme of maintenance within the park, but it does cover a huge area and this event will support efforts by both our own staff and the friends of the park in helping keep this gem clean and tidy for the thousands of visitors who travel there every year."

"We are delighted to be supporting the clean-up, which will be bringing people together to tackle an issue which our residents care passionately about, so I urge everyone, young and old alike, to sign up to the cause."

Enfield Youth Parliament

AS chairman of the Enfield Youth Parliament, I would like to talk about what we are trying to do and about our main project.

On establishing our new membership, we had difficulties with deciding our main priorities. We had many beliefs as to what was most important, but no idea where to start. To give you an idea, our main priorities include:

- Community cohesion.
- Crime.
- Environmental issues.
- Construction of youth services.
- General, sexual and mental health in youth.
- Real life integration.

With so much to think about the suggestion was made, by member Mudasar Ali to use YouTube to create our own platform/channel where we could better and more broadly target these issues.

We plan to use this as a tool to feed back to our schools with informative and formative videos, whereby we can explore all of our priorities while easily conveying the messages to schools, using the possibilities of assemblies and form time as a basis for broadcasting.

At the moment, we are at the point in which our first video is within reach. We have our training in production set up and have the resources and equipment available on relatively short notice. Furthermore, we already have a plan set out for our upcoming video.

We hope to create a tool for us and future youth parliaments to utilise in order to reach those in need, whether it be advice on mental health or finding a part-time job.

What action has been taken to reduce pollution?

FURTHER to councillor Daniel Anderson's letter ("I will not apologise for putting residents first", Advertiser, February 8), before we accept his undying support for them, perhaps he should explain why he and his colleague councillor Alan Sitkin sanctioned the provision of hundreds of homes along the A406, knowing that the residents' health and well-being would be blighted on a daily basis by poor air quality along this most polluted road.

Air pollution has been discussed for years. Clean Air Acts have reduced industrial and domestic pollution, but there seems to have been reluctance to act on traffic pollution, even though we are told the diesel engine is the major contributor. Current charging zones may reduce numbers but they do not restrict polluting vehicles. Moving from low emission to ultra emission zones will only deter people if they are enforced. Enfield has had a low emission zone for years. How many vehicles have been stopped and banned?

Enfield's Air Quality Action Plan defines the causes of air pollution and where it is most dense in Enfield and discussed solutions in 2012.

What action has been taken in the last five years to reduce pollution? Traffic restrictions in residential areas have increased congestion and pollution on adjacent A roads and Cycle Enfield will add to the problem.

Regrettable decision will hurt Cockfosters

LAST Tuesday evening (February 21) Enfield Council's planning committee voted eight to two in favour of approving the Cockfosters Green development adjacent to the Tube station.

I was the only councillor to vote against (with one other abstaining).

My reasons were simple and a reflection of the seemingly universal local disapproval I had detected:

- That the emergence of another big development in the area will exacerbate parking and traffic problems which are already at breaking point.

- That the suggestion that the building could include a much-needed NHS health centre was little more than a suggestion and that no firm guarantees were offered that this facility will be provided.

- That the scale of the proposed development was excessive and will transform a pleasant, village-like environment into an overbearing urban one. That if this building at one end of the high street is considered relative to the recently built and monolithic Cat Hill/Bolingbroke development at the other end – you will essentially have the barricading of the street and Cockfosters village will turn into Cockfosters fortress.

I was very much in favour of the redevelopment of the site and welcome additional new housing (including affordable) to the area – but for the reasons above, not in this form.

What I therefore proposed were some slight tweaks to the proposal that would make it much more acceptable – for example, not adding another floor, securing guarantees for the health centre and having a clear traffic strategy in place before works began.

Regrettably, my concerns, echoed by residents, were ignored in the interest of expediency – as is all too often the case with Enfield's planning committee.

We will therefore likely be left with another inappropriate development which will undermine the area's character, put considerable strain on services and make commuting more miserable still.

While the public who were aware seemed universally opposed to this scheme, there was a lack of organised protest – which meant the developers faced little challenge in getting their way.

The lesson surely is that if people feel strongly about something, they must make their voices heard before it's too late. In this case yet another bad decision by the council will likely have significant and negative long-term consequences.

Councillor Jason Charalambous

Fewer books and a poorer service

COUNCILLOR Ayfer Orhan, the cabinet member for education, is quoted as saying that in Enfield we have "17 fantastic facilities" when referring to our libraries "Library lined up for £4.2m refit", Advertiser, February 8).

The reality at the John Jackson Library is that we now have a much poorer service with 50 per cent less space, fewer books, no CDs or DVDs and unreliable IT terminals.

After an outcry from users, printing and photocopying facilities have been re-instated, but the library service has blocked the coin slot on the automatic issues and return machines so it is not possible to pay fines or add money to a user account to pay for talking books.

As these automatic machines do not give change and do not require emptying more than once a week, this is a strange decision in the light of financial pressure that local councils are operating under.

It's surprising her husband couldn't help

I WAS bemused to read that Marcia Chamberlain was unaware that plastic bags can no longer be put into green bins ("Councillor's wife in dust-up over recycling bin collection," Advertiser, February 22).

I have known about this for quite some time and have received this information from a number of sources. I'm surprised her husband, Lee Chamberlain, was no help in the matter.

Does he not take on his fair share of domestic duties? And why has he not made his wife aware of the change in this procedure? Perhaps their level of communication is not what it might be.

Further, I'm a bit taken aback that she suggests the council should dip into the public purse and send letters to all residents.

Doesn't she know the price of stamps these days? And, given that the government has cut funding to Enfield by a whopping 60 per cent since 2010, doesn't she agree that our money could be better spent on things that really matter?

Josephine joins pension protest

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

AN Edmonton woman was among thousands who joined a march to protest over changes to the state pension age.

Josephine Richards, 62, is one many women born in the 1950s who will have to wait a year longer, or more, before they can receive their state pension.

Government changes have gradually increased the state pension age for women from 60 to 65 – and it will increase to 66 by 2020.

Josephine, who lives in Hertford Road, Edmonton, is part of action group 50s WAG who joined the march to Westminster last week, calling on a rethink by the government.

She said that she wanted to represent the “voice” of Edmonton and echo women’s thoughts that the changes had been introduced far too quickly, preventing them from preparing for the future financially.

“I want to raise awareness of the changes to the women of Edmonton and let them know there is an action group fighting for them,” she said.

She is urging the government to revise the proposals and help those women “struggling” and living on the breadline.

The government decided to make the changes as average life expectancy for men and women is going up.

Edmonton MP Kate Osamor slammed the government for imposing changes she says “insults” the contribution women have made.

“After a lifetime of hard work, raising families and paying taxes, millions of women have had their retirement plans shattered,” she said.

She added that they had not been given sufficient time to make “alternative arrangements” for retirement.

“I ask that any of the women in Edmonton affected by these changes come forward and contact my office, and I will do my utmost to hold the government to account on this issue,” she said.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTSStudents on the right road with ideas to improve travel

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

SCHOOL students became aspiring entrepreneurs as they pitched their ideas to Dragons' Den-style judges.

Youth travel ambassadors from four secondary schools in Enfield presented their ideas to a panel of judges from Transport for London and Enfield Council at the Dugdale Centre, in Enfield Town, on Tuesday last week.

The aim of the event was to produce creative solutions to alleviate travel congestion, build confidence and keep active in the borough.

The Campaign Junction 2017 event involved pupils from Enfield County Lower School, in Rosemary Avenue, St Ignatius College, in Turkey Street, Enfield, St Anne's Catholic High School for Girls, in London Road, Enfield, and Kingsmead School, in Southbury Road, Enfield.

The judges were so impressed they awarded each school £250 to go towards funding their ideas.

The youngsters from Enfield

County School focused on reducing overcrowding on buses by promoting the benefits of walking.

St Anne's students proposed a walking app with the help of their ICT department and Kingsmead pupils looked into making cycling to school an attractive option.

St Ignatius students came up with ideas which included aiming to promote personal safety when walking to and from school.

Cheque mates: Students were awarded £250 for schools including, clockwise from top left, St Anne's Catholic High, St Ignatius College and Enfield County

More than 1,000 students are taking part in the national campaign, which is aimed at encouraging walking and cycling to school, while sharing key road safety tips and equipping youngsters with skills.

Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, praised the students for their "innovative, imaginative ideas".

"All the school teams have identified issues with transportation and have come up with excellent solutions to alleviate issues associated with their daily commute," she said.

Michael Kitchen, youth travel ambassador coordinator at Transport for London, also congratulated the students on contributing to a "safer, greener, healthier and happier transport future".

Aggressive driver puts his foot down

Car-free streets initiative marred by 'ugly incident'

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

POLICE had to be called out to a car-free street – where children could run up and down – after a driver refused to accept the restrictions.

Devonshire Road, in Palmers Green, was closed temporarily to through traffic on Sunday, February 19, as part of a monthly Play Streets scheme, during which cars are banned in favour of children playing.

But the event was marred by “ugly” scenes when an aggressive driver accelerated past a steward insisting he was a resident and had the right to continue – even though he was not. He returned a couple of hours later and police attended again.

Maire Harris, a Devonshire Road, resident, said: “It was very unfortunate. We had just closed the road so the children could play outside on their bikes and scooters. Then this man came down in his car and refused to stop. He was driving at quite some speed, so a steward chased after him.

“The driver got out and complained that the steward had smashed up his car. The driver was very aggressive and refused to move for about ten minutes.

“Then he came back later with his dad in the car. It was an ugly incident and sets a terrible example to the children.

“It’s not nice, but it’s important to remember it’s only the second time it’s happened in the three years we’ve been doing this.”

A police spokesman said: “We had three calls to Devonshire Road on that day. All three were linked to a driver attempting to drive through the road.”

Over the past few years, Play Streets have been rolled out in two thirds of London boroughs by the charity London Play to get children playing outside in the fresh air and meeting neighbours.

Enfield has a particularly high concentration of these streets, which neighbours regularly agree to close temporarily to through traffic with access for residents only – with the

PHIL ROGERS

Playtime for some: But not everyone got into the spirit of the occasion council’s approval. Devonshire Road, Old Park Road, New River Crescent and Riverside Gardens, all in Palmers Green, The Mall, in Southgate, and Orpington Road, in Winchmore Hill, all run play streets.

Maire and her husband have been play street organisers from the start and their twins, aged 11, have made some brilliant friends through the scheme.

Maire added: “It allows the children to play on their own street, rather than behind closed doors. It also allows the neighbours to meet and develops a great community spirit. Not only that but it gets the kids, outside, playing, and off their laptops.”

Paul Hocker, the development director of London Play, said: “Children have not changed. Their innate desire to play and make friends through play remains the same as it was 50 years ago.

“But the reality is that on an average day most children play outside for less than 30 minutes – and one in five children does not play outside at all.

“This suggests that across Enfield almost 17,000 children do not play outside. Children are spending twice as long inside on screens as they are playing outside.”

Devonshire Road is hosting another open play street on Sunday, March 19, from 2pm to 5pm, and people thinking of setting up a similar scheme can go along and have a look for themselves.

Woman's escape as tree topples over into garden

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

A 76-YEAR-OLD woman is counting her blessings after a brush with death when a giant tree crashed down into her back garden during Storm Doris last week.

Margaret Aukett had been out when the 50-foot-tall tree, on land occupied by a housing scheme for ex-servicemen and women at the back of her home, in Shooters Road, Enfield, was brought down by gale-force winds on Thursday afternoon.

The grandmother said it was "fortunate" she had not been using the tumble drier kept in the garage at the time because she would have been crossing the garden to get to it and could have been crushed to death.

"Thankfully, I had been collecting my grandson from college, but I was shocked when I saw the damage, it had caused" she said.

Her 80-year-old next-door neighbour Anne Preston, had been in the lounge at the back of her home when she heard "one almighty crash". She said: "I could see the tree had landed in Margaret's garden and her back fence had been flattened."

She said it wasn't the first time the rows of trees backing on to their properties had fallen into back gardens. One had crashed down on her conservatory in 1987 and another fell into her garden, smashing the fence three years ago.

Haig Housing, landlords of the scheme providing affordable homes for military veterans, said that, although they no longer had access to records more than 30 years ago, it was "most likely" the tree came down during the Great Storm of 1987 and added that the trees had been surveyed in 2014.

Storm damage: Margaret Aukett in her garden with neighbour Anne Preston

Ms Aukett said she had raised concerns with Haig that the tree at the bottom of her garden was rotten. Haig said that they carried out regular inspections on their properties and grounds including "necessary maintenance" work on the trees and had trimmed the branches in 2014. Responding to concerns from Ms Aukett that delays in repairing her fence was an open invitation to burglars, Haig said their grounds maintenance contractor would be assessing the damage.

"Once this has been completed we will be in a better position to assess any further repairs deemed necessary," said a spokesman.

He added that Haig would liaise with Ms Aukett and refer additional repair work to their insurance companies.

Price rise: David Burrowes is calling for an increase in the cost of some cider

MP pressing for increase in price of strong cider

CALLS for higher prices on super-strength cider have been made by MP David Burrowes before next week's budget.

The MP for Enfield Southgate has been a staunch campaigner for increased tax rates on alcohol such as "white cider", which has been a popular choice of drink among addicts because it is cheap.

During a visit to St Mary's Hospital, in Paddington, last week, Mr Burrowes met liver disease expert Professor Mark Thursz, who highlighted the implications of white cider, which has an alcohol content of 7.5 per cent.

Mr Burrowes said it was a "scandal" that, for the same cost of an off-peak cinema ticket, seven-and-a-half litres of white cider – containing as much alcohol as 53 shots of vodka – could be brought from supermarkets and shops.

Last year, during a House of Commons debate on the finance bill, Mr Burrowes called on the government to raise the alcohol tax on the drink.

He said that the high alcohol content and cheap price made it an attractive drink for addicts.

"This is a social injustice as it enables addicts to continue their dependency and white cider relates to 78 per cent of deaths among Thames Reach homeless charity clients," he said.

He added that he was "pleased" that some retailers had taken responsibility by withdrawing white cider from store shelves.

"It's time for the government to take a national lead and I will continue to press for this to happen," he said.

□ The Chancellor of the Exchequer will present the budget in the House of Commons next Wednesday (March 8).

What's on and what's coming

Back in the building

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

HAVING left the building two years ago, "Elvis" is returning to Edmonton's Millfield Theatre on Friday evening.

One of the world's leading Elvis impersonators Mario Kombou reprises his role as the King of Rock 'n' Roll when the venue, in Silver Street, welcomes back the dazzling stage show, The Elvis Years.

The spectacular production is an adaptation of the highly acclaimed West End musical Jailhouse Rock and had sell-out audiences all shook up on the two nights it was performed at the Millfield in 2015.

And its popularity is set to be repeated.

The show charts Elvis's life from the legendary Sun Studio sessions, the Grand Ole Opry and Louisiana Hayride, the death of his beloved mother, his time in the army, the Hollywood movie years, the '68 Comeback Special and the incomparable Las Vegas concerts.

It's intertwined with nostalgic film footage of Elvis and includes multiple costume changes as well as a top line-up of actors and musicians.

Kombou – described by Elvis's cousin Donna Presley as the "best Elvis since Elvis" – bears an uncanny resemblance to the legendary singer with trademark quiff, sideburns and sexually provocative pelvic thrusts.

But it's the striking similarity to Elvis's singing voice which sets him apart from other lookalikes and soundalikes.

The show includes dozens of the King's hits, among them That's Alright Mama, Hound Dog, Blue Suede Shoes, It's Now or Never, Just Can't Help Believing, The Wonder Of You, Suspicious Minds, American Trilogy, Bossa Nova Baby and Viva Las Vegas.

Cousin Donna likes him: Mario Kombou as Elvis Presley

Action-packed Hamlet does not disappoint

Hamlet
Millfield Theatre, February 23

WITH high winds raging and dark skies overhead, it was somewhat appropriate that Millfield was transformed into Elsinore for Shakespeare's classic tale of revenge.

This production was billed as "Hamlet of the Game of Thrones generation" and director Max Lewendel signalled his intent early on when Hamlet's nemesis Laertes (tackled by the sparky Andrew Venning) brutally dispatched a duelling opponent in a river of stage blood.

The action moved at a brisk pace, with the titular hero (Nicholas Limm) transformed from a timid youth into a man of action when the ghost of his father (Will Harrison-Wallace) appears in a cloud of dry ice to reveal that he has been murdered by his brother (and Hamlet's uncle), the treacherous Claudius (also played by Harrison-Wallace).

As a result, Claudius now sits on the throne of Denmark and, to add insult to injury, has "with unseemly haste" married Hamlet's mother Gertrude (Portia Booroff).

There was much to like in this production. Limm was particularly persuasive in the title role, torn between his desire for vengeance and his uncertainty in his own ability to do the job.

At times his lines were spoken by other actors, giving an indication of his inner turmoil as the different voices in his head compete for his attention.

It made for a Hamlet who really was "but mad north-north-west".

Limm was ably supported by Camille Marmie, who made for a confident Horatio, Kerry Gooderson as the brittle Ophelia and Robert Harris-Hughes as the scheming Polonius.

As the action reached its grim finale, Laertes returns to seek vengeance of his own for the deaths of his sister (Ophelia) and father (Polonius) and before one could say murder most foul, bodies littered the stage, Hamlet was taking his final bow and this reviewer found himself wanting more.

Quite literally, this was bloody good stuff.

Wolverine's last stand

LOGAN (15, 137 mins)

TIME waits for no mutant in Hugh Jackman's grim and explosively violent swansong as one of the most iconic characters in the X-Men universe.

Set in the year 2029, Logan paints a bleak portrait of super-powered beings on the verge of extinction in a brutal, intolerant world that destroys what it cannot understand.

Director James Mangold turbocharges the muscular action sequences including several bruising skirmishes between the lead character and his pursuers that invariably end with those razor-sharp claws slicing through flesh like a hot knife through butter.

There is plenty of spectacle here, punctuating a moving story of unconventional families in crisis, exemplified by the touching relationship between the title character and his 90-year-old surrogate father, Professor Charles Xavier (Patrick Stewart).

When protegee defies mentor, the script arms Stewart with some crisp and occasionally potty-mouthed rebukes, such as: "I wish I could say you were a good pupil, but the words would choke me!"

These outbursts are tinged with regret and a mournful acknowledgement that no one is immune from death's icy grasp – not even a man of science, who can supposedly stop the tick-tock of time with the power of his mind.

World-weary Logan (Jackman) lives under his birth name, James Howlett, in a tumbledown ranch in the desert, where he cares for the ailing professor, aided by albino tracker Caliban (Stephen Merchant).

Logan's abilities as Wolverine are waning – pus oozes from his knuckles when he retracts his Adamantium claws and his body no longer self-heals.

He earns a meagre wage as a chauffeur to pay for medication to alleviate the professor's violent psychic seizures, which paralyse humans and mutants alike within an ever-expanding radius.

Out of the blue, a nurse, Gabriela (Elizabeth Rodriguez), contacts Logan and offers him $50,000 to drive a mysterious girl, Laura (Dafne Keen) to "a place up north" called Eden.

The child is a vital link to a new generation of mutants and is being pursued by Transigen head surgeon Dr Zander Rice (Richard E Grant).

Logan hits the road accompanied by Professor Xavier and Laura, with Transigen's thuggish head of security, Donald Pierce (Boyd Holbrook), in hot pursuit.

En route, Logan discovers secrets about his inglorious past and reluctantly takes on the role of the little girl's snarling protector.

Logan strikes a contemplative tone, which sets it apart from the other standalone Wolverine films.

Director Mangold and fellow scriptwriters Scott Frank and Michael Green relish the freedom to explore familiar characters with fresh eyes.

They adopt a leisurely pace, closing one chapter of the X-Men mythology while potentially opening another.

Strong performances from Jackman and Stewart, whose on-screen partnership began 17 years ago, coupled with a sparkling film debut for 11-year-old Keen, ensure a fitting send-off.

Show Home at The Cardinals opens its doors for the first time

More than 150 people attend the launch of Dandara's Cheshunt development

Following months of anticipation, award-winning property developer Dandara has unveiled its stunning three-bedroom Show Home – The Windsor – at The Cardinals in Cheshunt.

The Windsor launched over the weekend of Saturday 21 and Sunday 22 January and proved a great success, with more than 150 people experiencing the delights of this stylish and contemporary home.

Based in the heart of Cheshunt and just 14 miles from central London, The Cardinals is a beautifully designed collection of three and four-bedroom homes, situated on the former site of St Mary's High School on Churchgate.

Since the launch, nine properties have been reserved already, with just eight homes within the first phase still available.

From a fitted kitchen by Moores with appliances by AEG and Zanussi, to stylish bathrooms accentuated by Sottini sanitary ware and ceramic floor tiling, Dandara has ensured that the properties are ready for the rigours of modern family living.

Susie Bennett, Dandara's UK Sales Director for the South East, said: "It was great to see so many visitors at the launch of our three-bedroom Show Home.

"Everyone at Dandara takes great pride in ensuring our homes meet the challenges of everyday life. Anyone who purchases one of the stunning properties at The Cardinals will be walking into a home with light and airy rooms that provide a real sense of space.

"Situated less than 1.5 miles from Cheshunt Rail Station, with direct services to London Liverpool Street taking under 25 minutes, it's no surprise The Cardinals is proving extremely popular with properties being snapped up quickly.

"We are extremely proud of The Windsor and we know it will be a superb addition to The Cardinals."

With the Sales and Marketing Suite open from Thursday to Monday, between 10am – 5pm, visitors can experience this superb development for themselves. The Windsor Show Home is available to view now, with The York, a four-bedroom Show Home, expected to launch in early spring 2017.

All properties sold at The Cardinals include a 10-year structural warranty and a two-year Dandara warranty. Dandara also has a dedicated customer care team ready to answer queries and concerns. LW DEVELOPMENTS

WANT TO BUY BUT NEED TO SELL? YOU COULD HAVE A GUARANTEED CASH BUYER

It was the end of a journey that began with Robinder trawling the Internet looking for her ideal home: a new house in a good location for schools and for commuting.

"I'd done my research and found Linden Homes online. We truly loved the look and feel of the development and were picturing ourselves living there – our young son in a local nursery and moving on to school nearby. What we saw were impressive family homes with the emphasis on build quality and design."

Before they put down their reservation deposit, Robinder and Arun had to decide what to do with the house they owned in Nottingham.

After speaking to the sales executive, they decided to use the Linden Homes Part Exchange scheme.

"It was a way of selling our existing house with minimal fuss. Linden Homes explained that they would essentially be a cash buyer on our existing home. It meant that if there were delays selling it, it wouldn't affect the completion date of our new home."

"Linden Homes offered us an agreed sum and took over the sale from there. The full market value Part Exchange scheme definitely took a lot of the hassle out of the process."

In the meantime Arun and Robinder were busy planning their new home:

"We bought the house off plan. It was something of a leap of faith but it meant that, although our house wasn't built yet, we could choose some of the finishes. We chose flooring, tiles, carpets, and worktops. It was really fun."

The Cedar Collection at Elmbank, Arkley consists of just 6 four bedroom houses offering spacious living accommodation over three floors, high specification, parking and all overlooking an open green.

Linden Homes will be holding a launch event on Saturday 4th March, giving potential purchasers the opportunity to be one of the first to view plans and further details. To book your appointment please call 02037 338 228.

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', 'JT' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reason the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Receptibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified listings and semi-displays) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

KANE IS PRAISED AFTER HAT-TRICK

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR manager Mauricio Pochettino hailed Harry Kane after the striker grabbed another hat-trick in Sunday's 4-0 Premier League victory at home to Stoke City.

Kane had scored three times in Spurs' FA Cup win over Fulham the previous weekend and he repeated the feat in this match – netting the first three goals in a win which saw the side climb into second place in the table.

The treble led to Kane, who was out of action through injury for the best part of two months earlier in the campaign, becoming the first Tottenham player to net 20 times in three successive seasons since Jimmy Greaves and also resulted in him moving joint top of the Premier League's goalscoring charts for this season with Arsenal star Alexis Sanchez and Romelu Lukaku of Everton.

And, following Kane's latest heroics in front of goal, Pochettino has no doubts that he deserves to be labelled as one of the best strikers in the world.

"It's no surprise to me," the manager said. "For me, whether or not he scores he's the same. He's a top player, one of the best. He's a top professional and a top man. It's fantastic to have Harry on the team.

"He is playing at a very good level. He's one of the best strikers in the world. He deserves it because he's a great professional.

"It does not surprise me. With how he behaves, how professional he is and how like a man he is – he has the perfect profile to be a legend at this club."

While Pochettino reserved special praise for Kane, he was delighted with the way the whole team bounced back from their hugely disappointing Europa League exit at the hands of Gent at Wembley Stadium three days earlier.

"The performance was fantastic," he added. "I'm very pleased with the effort after Thursday. We were all disappointed after Wembley and this was a big, big response. It's for that reason that we all feel very proud.

"We played very well. The first half was fantastic, the second half we controlled and managed the game and created some more. The three points were important for us to keep our position in the table.

"The competition doesn't wait for you and it's important to keep going, to be clever in how we assess every situation and think ahead – now to the Premier League and the FA Cup."

After Kane's treble had put Spurs in control, Dele Alli added the fourth in his first outing since his sending off for a horror tackle in the Europa League match against Gent.

Pochettino said: "I gave Dele love, more love than normal. He is very mature. I am very happy for him because he was very sad.

"He is only 20 years old and I would always protect him. For me he is one of the best young players in the world too."

One of the best: Spurs boss Mauricio Pochettino believes Harry Kane is among the leading strikers in the world

Vavega makes the move to the Skolars

THE London Skolars have bolstered their ranks ahead of the start of rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship Two this weekend by signing Simona Vavega.

The experienced Vavega was part of the Brisbane Broncos junior development squad from the age of 14 and he trained as part of their full-time squad in 2007 and 2008.

An Australian schoolboy international, he was also a scholarship holder at the Queensland Academy of Sport Rugby League programme.

His first year of senior rugby league was with the West Panthers Colts and Vavega then moved to the Aspley Colts.

He also spent time playing for Norths Devils in the Queensland Cup and most recently helped set up the West Brisbane Panthers in the Brisbane A Grade competition.

"I'm really looking forward to the season ahead with the Skolars," he said. "Head coach Jermaine Coleman and his coaching staff have done a great job developing the team and club over the past couple of years and I look forward to being part of that continued development."

Vavega could take to the field at the New River Stadium for the first time on Saturday (2.30pm), when the Skolars begin their league bid with a landmark match at home to newly-formed Canadian side Toronto Wolfpack.

Meanwhile, Sunday saw the London Skolars make a winning start to their Ladbrokes Challenge Cup campaign by easing to a 22-12 victory at Hemel Stags in the third round of the competition.

A dominant display from the Skolars saw them never really threatened after opening up a 12-0 lead by the interval.

Lamont Bryant, Billy Driver, Aaron Small and Charlie Lawrence all scored tries, with Lawrence adding three goals.

The draw for the fourth round, which sees the Championship One sides enter the competition, was due to take place last night.

Benjamin on target in narrow victory

CHRIS BENJAMIN scored the only goal as Haringey Borough were forced to work hard to overcome basement side Wroxham in the Ryman League North Division on Saturday.

Visiting Borough were never at their fluent best, but Benjamin's goal on 31 minutes was enough to give them a victory which saw them climb to within a point of the play-off places.

The struggling hosts were unlucky not to take the lead on a heavy pitch through Matt Cook's fantastic strike from the best part of 30 yards out which came back off the post and Wroxham again went close when Craig Bussens was thwarted by visiting keeper Harry Palmer after finding himself through on goal.

Jack Newman became the second home player to be denied by the frame of the goal as his 25-yard free-kick struck the upright on the half hour and – having ridden their luck – Borough opened the scoring moments later when a deep cross was headed in by Benjamin at the far post.

Despite the goal, Palmer continued to be the busier keeper in the remainder of the first half and he made an excellent save on 42 minutes from a low Ross Gilfedder shot which took a horrible bobble in front of him.

Wroxham continued to bely their lowly standing in the table in the second half as they again took the game to their visitors – although they found it harder to create clear-cut chances.

But they left themselves open at the back as they pushed more men forward and Borough squandered two good opportunities to extend their lead as Scott Durojaie fired wide before Joshua Willer's shot just missed the near post after he made space for himself in the box.

Gilfedder did volley straight at Palmer, but this was a rare scare for the visitors in the second period and they were able to hold on for a crucial victory.

Haringey Borough entertain Bury Town on Saturday (3pm).
